

workingrite

WorkingRite is a successful and sustainable solution to youth unemployment. Our mission is to help 16-19 year olds who need support into sustained employment, apprenticeships or purposeful learning.

We have three core beliefs:

- Every young person has the capability to succeed in adulthood, regardless of their past. Some just need a little extra help. Some just need a chance.
- We are passionate about learning, but we feel there's more to learning than classrooms and textbooks. Learning through doing is just as valid and valuable.
- It is our duty to be good role models to young people in our community, respect the contribution they can make and entrust them with the skills and knowledge that our elders taught us.

The WorkingRite programme bridges the gap between school and work, giving young people essential work experience, providing good role models, building their confidence and offering them a quality vocational alternative to academic learning. We do this through individually matched placements with local employers, placing young people into our unique work-based learning and mentoring programme.

It costs almost £24,000 a week to deliver our programme, around £9,326 of which must be raised from voluntary contributions, grants, sponsorship, fundraising events and gifts in wills.

Thank you for your support.

Fine dining - by Alex

Join us for an exclusive fine dining experience

Alex Bond has trained in Michelin star restaurants and spent the last 14 months organising pop-up restaurants and supper clubs around the country - refining dishes that will feature in his own restaurant - scheduled to open in Nottingham later in 2017.

We are delighted that he is bringing his amazing talent to Scotland for a one time only pop-up restaurant in Edinburgh to benefit WorkingRite.

With five courses of mouth-watering dishes - and taster wine options - it is an opportunity not to be missed.
